

2014/15 Batch

SGD on 21st June 2018

1.15 – 3.15pm

Please complete the following and bring your answers with you

1. Name six medically important highly venomous snakes in Sri Lanka.
2. Complete the table in relation to identification characters, distribution, habitat type, behavior and common bite sites of Sri Lankan venomous snakes.

|  | Russell'sviper | Saw scaledviper | Hump-nosedviper | Indian /Commonkrait | Ceylon /Sri Lankankrait | Cobra |
|--|--------------------|---------------------|-------------------------|-----------------------------|---------------------------------|-------|
| Keyidentificationfeatures      |                    |                     |                         |                             |                                 |       |
| Distributionwith in SriLanka   |                    |                     |                         |                             |                                 |       |
| Commonhabitat type                 |                    |                     |                         |                             |                                 |       |
| Most activetime of theday      |                    |                     |                         |                             |                                 |       |
| Common siteof bite                 |                    |                     |                         |                             |                                 |       |
| Clinicaleffects ofenvenomation |                    |                     |                         |                             |                                 |       |